If you see a hive up in a tree, don't disturb the honey bee's,
They are making honey for you and me,
We put that honey on our toast,
And sometimes in our tea!

When we steal their honey away,
They have to do all that work again another day.
But they don't pout, and they don't cry,
They are brave and strong and I'm telling you why....

They just bounce back and do it all again,
But they don't do it on their own,
There's thousands of workers helping each other,
Many, many sisters and brothers.

They work again, collecting nectar and pollen,
The honey bee dance is very common,
They fly and fly visiting millions of flowers,
They kind of have a super power.

Honey bee's are great, they also make flowers grow,
So help protect our bee's, for every tomorrow.
